4 FEDERAL OFFICIALS HONORED BY JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, June 6

(UPI) President Johnson named today four winners of the 1964 President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service the highest honor accorded a Federal career employee.

The recipients are:

John Doar, first assistant to the Assistant Attorney General, Civil Rights Division, Justice Department; Herbert Friedman, superintendent of the Atmosphere and Astrophysics Division, United States Naval Research Laboratory; Lyman B. Kirkpatrick Jr., executive director-controller, Central Intelligence Agency, and Bromley K. Smith, executive secretary, National Security Council.

The President will present the awards, consisting of a gold medal and citation, at a ceremony in the White House Flower Garden late this month. The White House said the officials "have made exceptional achievements in the fields of civil rights, space science, intelligence and defense."

In a memorandum to the heads of all Federal departments and agencies, Mr. Johnson said:

"These individuals stand tall among the many men and women who serve their country and their fellow citizens with great distinction.

"They are the exceptional doers who, by selfless effort and brilliance of achievement, have made unique contributions to scientific progress, to the advancement of human rights, and to the strengthening of our national security."

Johnson Picks 4 'Doers' for Awards

President Johnson yesterday selected four civil service "doers" from the Justice Department, the Naval Research Laboratory and two Federal Intelligence agencies, to receive the 1964 President's award for distinguished civilian service. "Doer" is White House terminology for a person of exceptional accomplishment. The first doer on Mr. Johnson's list was John Doar, Justice Department attorney who has initiated 60 civil suits to protect voting rights, since joining the department in July, 1960.

Herbert Friedman, of New York City, superintendent of the atmosphere and astrophysics division of the Naval Research Laboratory, was singled out for "leadership in the new science of rocket astronomy." Lyman B. Kirkpatrick, of Rochester, N. Y., now with the Central Intelligence Agency, was cited for "achieving significant improvements in the operational effectiveness" of the CIA. Bromley K. Smith, executive secretary of the National Security Council, made the doer list by "revolutionizing the communications system supporting Presidential decision-making and action in foreign affairs."
